About The LSO's Healing Art of Music™ Program

For 32 years, the LSO has performed its annual four-concert series at New England Conservatory's Jordan Hall, one of the most celebrated concert halls in Boston, to diverse audiences of 700-1000 attendees including prominent members of Boston's medical community, community and business leaders, and classical music lovers.

Composed primarily of medical professionals who are also highly trained musicians, the LSO established the Healing Art of Music program, an award-winning business model through which it uses its concerts to help nonprofit organizations raise funds for Boston's medically underserved. Since 1991, the LSO has collaborated with more than 45 organizations, helping them raise more than $1,000,000.

Prior to each concert season, the LSO Community Engagement Committee chooses the Community Partners for the upcoming season through a competitive application process. Any nonprofit organization with a medical or educational mission based in Greater Boston may be considered. Nominee organizations are evaluated for strength of mission and vision, infrastructure, and capacity for growth.

Shattuck Partners Takes the Hospital to the Community

For the first time, Shattuck Partners reserved a table at this year's Wake Up the Earth Festival in Jamaica Plain on Saturday, May 3rd. Volunteers staffed the table, inviting passersby to learn more about the Lemuel Shattuck Hospital and Shattuck Partners. A free raffle was offered, compliments of Shattuck Partners, and more than 150 people entered, sharing their contact information so we can stay in touch. It was a beautiful day, and those who stopped by the table were very supportive and excited to learn more!

According to Spontaneous Celebrations, the event organizer, Wake Up the Earth began in 1979 and is a celebration of what can be accomplished when people of all traditions, cultures, ages, and beliefs come together in community collaboration. More than 10,000 people attend the Wake Up the Earth festival each year, enjoying music, performances, and the many craft, non-profit, and food vendors who line up along Lamartine and surrounding streets.
